SOUND & PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEMS

Basic PA systems are comprised of loudspeakers placed in convenient locations around a broadcasting area, an amplifier to increase the sound, and a mixer that adjusts audio levels. The user speaks into a microphone, and the sound is transmitted through connected cables, or a wireless system, out through the speakers. Some systems also include microphones or intercom near the speaker locations, allowing the listener to reply to the central location. These responses are not broadcast to the entire system only, but also Nurse call system to the main user area.

NURSE CALL SYSTEM

The calling system is now an essential equipment for hospitals, and an important means of communication for daily care and emergency rescue, in order to widely meet the demand for service call in the medical institutions.
